March 2024

We are proud to present the Spring 2024 edition of Westwood Creative Artists' rights catalogue. Please allow us to spend a few words highlighting some of the recent accomplishments our clients have achieved over the past several months.

Starting off with news about our authors' works of fiction, Don Gillmor's Breaking and Entering (p. 20) has a fan in Oprah! The novel was picked as one of the best books of 2023 on Oprah Daily, which called it "surely the most interesting midlife crisis of the year." Kirkus and The Globe & Mail have also featured it in their best books of the year lists. In a New York Times Book Review feature highlighting what their readers are reading, Robert J. Katz called it "one of the best, most complete novels I've read." Breaking and Entering was recently longlisted for the 2023 Republic of Consciousness Prize, a $35,000 prize that honors fiction published by an independent publishing house in the US and Canada. Biblioasis holds North American English rights; publishing rights in all other territories are available, and a television deal is currently in negotiation!

Virginia Evans' The Correspondent (p. 19) is a charming epistolary debut that has been capturing publishers' hearts around the world. Amy Einhorn at Crown acquired world rights in a pre-empt and will publish in May 2025. Heated auctions in Germany and Italy were won by Goldmann and Rizzoli respectively, and recently offers were accepted from Michael Joseph for UK & Commonwealth excl. Canada and Arqueiro / Sextante for Brazil. Ann Patchett's advance blurb calls The Correspondent "a cause for celebration."

Never Been Better (p. 30), Leanne Toshiko Simpson's debut novel has received many glowing reviews. Uzma Jalaluddin, bestselling author of Much Ado About Nada, called it "delightful... searing and honest, Never Been Better is that most rare of things – a novel that combines humour, heartache and hope in one page-turning package, with lyrical and wickedly funny writing in spades. Simpson is a writer to watch!" Booklist called it "laugh-out-loud funny," and Kirkus gave a starred review, deeming it "invigoratingly comic... full of sharp, pithy dialogue and farcical scenes that will put a grin on your face... a funny, refreshing, and generous story full of wisdom on mental health." Never Been Better has been published by Putnam US and HarperCollins Canada, and we've completed deals for rights in Brazil, Germany, Netherlands, as well as US Large Print.

Susan Juby's A Meditation on Murder (p. 22) was an instant national bestseller, landing on both The Globe & Mail and Toronto Star lists. The hilarious mystery follows butler-detective Helen Thorpe helping a wannabe influencer get her life in order – and solve the murders of her fellow content creators. Praised for her "compulsively readable, self-deprecating wit, a candid voice, and an entertainer's penchant for the lively turn of phrase" (Toronto Star), Juby's clever, comic cozy will delight fans of The No. 1 Ladies Detective Agency and The Thursday Murder Club series. Her previous novel Mindful of Murder was shortlisted for the Stephen Leacock Medal for Humour and debuted at #1 on the independent bookstore bestsellers list.

The debut novel by Loghan Paylor, The Cure for Drowning (p. 27), has been amassing great attention in the media since its publication on January 30th. An action-packed historical romance that tells the story of Kit McNair, a non-binary person during WWII, its magical realism and high-concept hook have captured the attention of media and readers alike. Jessica Poon in The British Columbia Review called the book “a soap opera in the best way possible,” while the Toronto Star said, “The Cure for Drowning takes a page from Nicholas Sparks’ use of historical settings.” Paylor made their television debut on Global News publicizing their book on the Palma’s Picks segment. And, if you’re curious about the music that inspired Paylor while they were writing, you can check out their The Cure for Drowning playlist on Spotify here and on YouTube here.

Moving into non-fiction, the past few months have given us numerous opportunities to celebrate alongside Kyo Maclear! In addition to winning to the $25,000 Vicky Metcalf Award for Literature for Young People in recognition of her lifetime achievement in children’s writing, Kyo Maclear won the $25,000 Governor General’s Literary Award in the Non-fiction category for her beautiful memoir Unearthing: A Story of Tangled Love and Family Secrets (p. 39). In its citation, the peer assessment committee called the book “a finely plotted and intricate narrative [that] reimagines the garden metaphor and explores the porous grounds of self, culture and belonging.” Unearthing was also a National Jewish Book Award finalist in the category of Autobiography and Memoir. Published in the UK by Pushkin Press, in Canada by Knopf, and in the US by Scribner, Unearthing will be published in translation by AdMarginem in Russia and Barambooks in Korea. All other rights are available.

Sima Samar’s Outspoken: My Fight for Freedom and Human Rights in Afghanistan, written with Sally Armstrong (p. 42), has been called an “inspirational lifelong legacy of resistance and resilience... palpably present in this memorable self-portrait” by Kirkus. Samar’s advance blurbers have given glowing reviews – among them, Louise Arbour, former UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, wrote “Samar’s life and work stand in defiance to the dark rule of the Taliban”; Eleanor Smeal, president of Feminist Majority Foundation and publisher of Ms. Magazine, called it a “must read for every woman – indeed for every person – who supports equality and human rights”; and Lisa LaFlamme of Journalists for Human Rights said, “Samar gives bravery a face.” Random House published the memoir in Canada; it will also be published by Saqi Books in the UK, Europe, and Middle East, and HarperCollins Australia.

Quantum physicist and Senior TED Fellow Shohini Ghose has garnered extraordinary praise around the world for Her Space, Her Time: How Trailblazing Women Scientists Decoded the Hidden Universe. From the BBC Sky at Night magazine: "This book is truly for everyone, and I can't overstate how much I enjoyed it." From The Boston Globe: "Ghose's engaging book... explains complex concepts with clarity... and is a passionate look at the women who've pushed our understanding forward in space exploration, radioactivity, the splitting of the atom, and subatomic imaging." A reviewer on GoodReads called it, "Groundbreaking! A truly remarkable account of a history that is profoundly important to the story of humanity. ... I loved every minute of this powerful and exquisitely written book." Top science magazines agreed: "The seven chapters are highly informative, each one having dramatic moments and discoveries" (American Scientist); and "A disdain for misogyny past and present shines through in Shohini Ghose's rich history of women's underappreciated contributions to astronomy and physics" (New Scientist). With all this praise, no surprise that The Next Big Idea Club named it one of the "Top 50 Science Books of 2023."

Fashioning the Beatles by Deirdre Kelly has been getting rave reviews around the world! The New York Sun called it "not only an investigation of the Beatles' love of fashion, but a detailed portrait of a fascinating cultural decade... Nostalgia and Beatles Buffs will feel enriched and reflective, and younger readers will find much to discover about their grandparents' generation." The beautifully illustrated book received a gorgeous four-page feature in Italian women's magazine iO Donna and The Bite Magazine. Kelly has appeared in author Q&As for the book in The Style That Binds Us mini mag and Carl Thompson's UK-based menswear blog, and has received kudos from art and pop culture writer Donald Brackett's blog, The Chap Magazine, Culture Sonar, and the music collector's magazine Goldmine. Sutherland House holds World English rights; all other rights are available.

Take care,

The Team at Westwood Creative Artists

Caroline Adderson A WAY TO BE HAPPY

Stories

With stylistic bravado and compassion, award-winning fiction writer Caroline Adderson – celebrated for her linguistic confidence as well as for her humanity – returns to the short story form with a faultlessly written collection that offers readers an intimate glimpse into the astonishing lives of others.

From inmates in an early twentieth century psychiatric institution to a struggling young writer, a Russian hitman, and a husband bewildered by his flailing long-term marriage, the characters in these stories inhabit lives that are by turns funny and deeply serious. Together, they are a poignant reminder that we are all, independent of our circumstances, looking for a way to be happy.

CAROLINE ADDERSON is the author of five novels and two prior collections of short stories, as well as many books for young readers. Published internationally, her work has received numerous award nominations, including for the Sunday Times EFG Short Story Award, the International IMPAC Dublin Literary Award, two Commonwealth Writers’ Prizes, the Governor General’s Literary Award, the Rogers Writers’ Trust Fiction Prize, and the Scotiabank Giller Prize. Winner of three BC Book Prizes and three CBC Literary Prizes, Adderson was also the recipient of the Marian Engel Award for mid-career achievement. She teaches in the Writing and Publishing Program at SFU and is the Program Director of the Writing Studio at the Banff Centre for Arts and Creativity.

Gurjinder Basran THE WEDDING

If you liked the colorful characters and cultural insights in Netflix’s top-trending reality show Indian Matchmaker; Hayu’s hit series Family Karma; or the critically acclaimed film ‘Monsoon Wedding,’ you’ll love Gurjinder Basran’s fourth novel, The Wedding. Set in present-day Vancouver, it exposes the secret lives of the wedding party, guests, and event staff and illustrates a South Asian community at odds with itself in the lead up to a lavish Indian wedding.

Centered around the impending marriage of Devi and Baby, it illustrates the union of two people, two families and all the ways in which an entire community bears witness, ensnares, and uplifts itself.

The Wedding is ripe with family drama, steeped in tradition and an ode to love in all its forms. With humor, nuance, and honesty, it spills the chai, exploring desire and expectation, suffering and judgment, class and race – all in search of a happy (or happy-enough) ever after. As the wedding reveals the participants and their interwoven story-lines, it also causes changes – some dramatic, some more subtle – in their lives. The result is a wide-ranging but intimate portrait of a vibrant, complex Sikh community.

GURJINDER BASRAN is the award-winning author of three novels: Everything Was Goodbye (Mother Tongue and Penguin Canada), winner of the Ethel Wilson Fiction Prize and a Chatelaine Magazine Book Club pick; Someone You Love is Gone (Penguin Canada and Harper Perennial); and Help! I’m Alive (ECW Press). Hailed by the CBC as one of “Ten Canadian women writers you need to read,” she is currently the Director of Learning and Development at Bell Canada. She lives in Delta, British Columbia, with her family.

When the grey bus came to take Rainor Schacht and his friends in the ward for disabled children to a remote Nazi hospital called Trutzburg, no one told them what dark reality awaited them behind closed doors.

“When We Were Ashes is an amazing read – a page-turner plot-wise, imbued with language that dances on the page. A sui generis and unflinching take on the macro and micro evils of Nazi Germany, Andrew Boden’s debut novel throbs with humanity, intelligence, moral complexity, and an understanding of the complications of extreme cruelty and extreme kindness. I was loath for it to end, yet read at a trot – the child narrator Rainor, his brilliant friend Emmi, and the conflicted bus driver Peter Berger have stayed residents in my mind even months later.”

– Zsuzsi Gartner, author of Scotiabank Giller Prize finalist Better Living Through Plastic Explosives and Writers’ Trust Fiction Prize finalist The Beguiling

Andrew Boden WHEN WE WERE ASHES

One winter morning in Stuttgart, an ominous grey bus comes to take Rainor and his friends from one hospital to another – from a ward for disabled children to a Nazi hospital deep in the countryside. No one will tell them what awaits them there – not Nurse Hilde; not Peter Berger, the kind bus driver; not Dr. Lutz, the doctor who runs Trutzburg with ruthless efficiency.

Years later, after the war, and with Peter Berger’s coded diary in hand, Rainor sets out to find the only other child who survived Trutzburg with him – Emmi, a girl who looked past his disfigurement to accept and love him. Rainor is led on a traumatic journey over a haunting landscape to learn the truth about his past and the even more extraordinary truth about his present.

Told from three points of view, When We Were Ashes features uniquely sympathetic characters, a compelling account of a terrible true crime and its aftermath, and rare moral complexity – a shattering and rewarding novel.

ANDREW BODEN lives in British Columbia and works at Simon Fraser University as executive director of the Administrative Professional Staff Association. He is the author of The Secret History of My Hometown (stories) and a director of Books Over Borders, a Canadian children’s literacy charity that has helped tens of thousands of children in Afghanistan and Canada learn to read. As a hobby, he explores British Columbia caves. His above-ground time is mostly spent in Burnaby, where he lives with his wife and three calculating cats.

AND THEN THERE WAS US

Coi is just eighteen years old, but has already survived years of physical and verbal abuse from her mother. After being kicked out of her mother's house at age fourteen, Coi has lived with her father, and together they've created a peaceful life. That peace ends suddenly when her mother dies.

While Coi struggles to find kindness in her heart for the woman who only hurt her, she starts having lucid dreams, forcing her to relive moments of abuse and emotional trauma that eventually led to Coi's abandonment.

Her mother's passing also reopens the door to her mother's side of the family, including her beloved younger half-sister, Kayla, her stepfather and her grandmother. Each of them challenge Coi's long-held views about her mother, especially Kayla, who, Coi realizes, is taking their mother's loss hard. As she reconnects with her family, Coi learns to see parts of her mother she never experienced, and for the first time since she was abandoned, opens her heart to forgiveness.

Nolan Chase A LONESOME PLACE FOR DYING

Blaine, Washington is a seaside town where on an average day, the most serious police work involves dealing with stray coyotes or ticketing speeders along the I-5. Ethan Brand is reporting for his first day on the job as Blaine’s newest Chief of Police. Before Ethan can start his first shift, he finds a threat on his porch, along with a gruesome souvenir, a bloody heart.

There are plenty of people who are upset about Ethan stepping into the shoes of the last Chief, but when a body shows up on the railroad tracks, he’s got to focus on the task at hand. With a population of only 5,000, Blaine sees eight million vehicles pass through its Peace Arch crossing every year. It’s the perfect site for drug smuggling, human trafficking, larceny, and murder.

Ethan begins to realize that the sleepy town has a lot more secrets than he originally thought. With no one to trust, his job already on the line, and the threats getting bolder and more reckless, Ethan Brand must find the killers and bring them to justice.

NOLAN CHASE lives and works in the Pacific Northwest. A Lonesome Place for Dying is his first novel. A fan of paperback novels, country music, and old movies, Chase is at work on a follow-up novel featuring Blaine police chief Ethan Brand.

Antonio Michael Downing BLACK CHEROKEE

Black Cherokee is a timeless story of self-discovery and the search for identity. It is the coming of age of Ophelia Blue Rivers, a young orphan who in her own words is: “Half Black, half Cherokee and all mixed up.”

The novel chronicles Ophelia’s struggles to find her place in the world while being raised by the indomitable Grandma Blue, a descendent of Cherokee freedmen in rural South Carolina in the ‘90s. Ophelia is a perpetual misfit and must reconcile the loss of the family she never had with the imperfect reality of the one that has her. Along the way she encounters moments of meanness and magic that shape her emergence and asks profound questions about the forces that make us who we are.

Black Cherokee is at once a vital portrait of 1990s American life and an intensely imaginative, lyrical meditation on family, love and belonging.

Marissa Eller JOINED AT THE JOINTS

Chronically ill Ivy has stayed in watching the Food Network all summer – pies are better than people, and they don’t trigger her social anxiety. So when her (also) chronically ill mom and sister cook up a plan to get Ivy out of the house and into a support group, Ivy doesn’t expect to say more than a few words.

And she certainly doesn’t expect Grant. Grant is CUTE: class-clown cute, perfectly-messy-hair cute, will-always-text-you-back cute. There’s an instant connection between them. He has the same diagnosis as her – juvenile rheumatoid arthritis – and he actually understands Ivy’s world.

But just because he understands Ivy’s pain doesn’t mean he can take it away. And she wishes he could – because it’s getting worse. Ivy has always tried her best to appear pain-free, but between treatment plans, symptom management, and struggling with medical self-advocacy, being sick feels more and more difficult. Will Ivy’s delicious new romance pan out? Can she keep up the façade, for him and for the world... or should she be brave and let it go?

Marissa Eller serves up a sweet, satisfying romcom that tackles the realities of chronic illness – and coming-of-age milestones from friend breakups to first kisses – with wry humor, tons of heart, and a huge helping of honesty. Nuanced, poignant, and deeply enjoyable, readers will fall for Eller’s voice in this compelling debut that offers all the right ingredients.

Virginia Evans THE CORRESPONDENT

On a warm June evening Sybil Van Antwerp unwittingly drives her Cadillac into a wall. Sybil is 73 years old, retired from an illustrious law career and living alone just north of Annapolis, Maryland. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, Sybil writes pages and pages of letters, but she has begun to go blind and someone is stalking her, and her small but meticulous kingdom stands to come undone.

This is a story about a woman in the winter of her life, trying to make meaning of the past. She had three children, but one son passed away in circumstances in which Sybil may have played a role, and her relationship with her daughter is fraught. She was married happily, but that fell apart, too.

The Correspondent is comprised entirely of letters by and to Sybil, a frank, intelligent, hilarious, and compassionate woman bound up in a web of guilt and shame. There is the ongoing ping-pong with her best friend Rosalie; an unsent letter to the mysterious Colt 30 years in the crafting; correspondence with the young boy who will try to kill himself; notes between Sybil and her beguiling German neighbor. The catalog is rich, but by conducting her most intimate relationships through correspondence, she has curated the story of her life and kept complicated and devastating truths secret. Now as Sybil's eyes give way, secrets come to light and the people she's kept at a distance encroach, and she can no longer hide behind her fortress of letters and pens.

VIRGINIA EVANS completed her Masters in Creative Writing at Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. Her work has appeared in The Irish Times, the Dublin literary magazine Sonder, and Rivercliff Books & Media's PenDust Radio. She lives in North Carolina.

Don Gillmor BREAKING AND ENTERING

A Novel

Forty-nine and sweating through the hottest summer on record, Beatrice Billings is rudderless: her marriage is stale, her son communicates solely through cryptic text messages, her mother has dementia, and she conducts endless arguments with her older sister in her head. Toronto feels like an inadequately air-conditioned museum of its former self, and the same could be said of her life. She dreams of the past, her days as a newlywed, a new mom, a new homeowner gutting the kitchen – now the only novel experience that looms is the threat of divorce.

Everything changes when she googles "escape" and discovers the world of amateur lock-picking. Breaking into houses is thrilling: she's subtle and discreet, never greedy, but as her curiosity about other people's lives becomes a dangerous compulsion and the entire city feels a few degrees from boiling over, she realizes she must turn her guilty analysis on herself.

A searingly insightful rendering of midlife among the anxieties of the early 21st century, Breaking and Entering is an exacting look at the fragility of all the things we take on faith.

DON GILLMOR is the author of To the River, which won the Governor General's Literary Award for non-fiction. ## Tasneem Jamal I NEVER SAID THAT I WAS BRAVE

“This is what Miriam does to me. Always. She demands my attention. But I don’t understand. There is so much I don’t understand. I am speaking now of things beyond gravitational forces and cosmology. And here we have arrived at my motivation for telling you about Miriam and about everything that happened, from the beginning. You see, if I try to make you understand, perhaps I will understand – not only Miriam’s choices, but also mine.”

It has been two years since the charismatic astrophysicist Miriam killed her young daughter and herself. Her lifelong friend, the unnamed narrator, is ready to tell Miriam’s story. As she recounts the shifting dynamics of their friendship, the narrator describes herself as “empty space” to Miriam’s sun. But is she the passive observer she purports to be?

I Never Said That I Was Brave is about two childhood immigrants: clever, intellectually ambitious girls who are outwardly able to assimilate. But in adulthood, fissures – formed by the expectations of their South Asian communities and their family histories – appear and grow deeper as the women navigate a culture vastly different from their parents’. Concepts of quantum physics (dark matter and the role of consciousness) serve as signals that the landscape of this novel is unstable, and the narrator’s account should not always be trusted. As she follows her memories on their unpredictable and unreliable paths, we are taken on a devastating journey which blurs distinctions between right and wrong, victim and manipulator, life and death.

Tasneem Jamal’s provocative, absorbing story of obsessive friendship is reminiscent of Elena Ferrante’s Neapolitan novels, and resonant of the non-linear storytelling in Kazuo Ishiguro’s Never Let Me Go.

TASNEEM JAMAL was born in Mbarara, Uganda, and immigrated to Canada with her family in 1975. She has worked as a journalist for over a decade at a number of Canadian newspapers, including The Globe & Mail and the National Post. She is the Communications Officer for Project Ploughshares, a Waterloo, Ontario-based peace research institute.

Susan Juby A MEDITATION ON MURDER

When Buddhist butler Helen Thorpe is loaned out to help Cartier Hightower get her life in order, Helen finds herself working for a young woman entirely unbound by the fetters of good taste or sound judgment. One of Cartier’s fellow content creators has recently died in a strange accident. Soon after Helen arrives, another is killed in an equally bizarre way. Cartier begins to drag Helen around on the influencer circuit, where neither of them is particularly welcome. Then comes the terrible incident at the EDM nightclub that turns Cartier into a global pariah, at least according to social media.

Helen hopes a period of simplicity and reflection and an internet detox will help Cartier find her true nature and maybe acquire some social graces. But Helen’s job gets much harder when Cartier’s friends show up at the lavish ranch where Cartier and Helen have retreated. Soon, Helen finds herself trying to avoid becoming Instafamous while bringing some peace to a girl who very much needs it. This task turns out to be even more impossible when it becomes clear that they have been followed to Weeping Creek Ranch by a murderer.

Lynne Kutsukake THE ART OF VANISHING

Akemi’s desire for independence and aversion to marriage are unusual in her small village. A gift for drawing allows her to move to Tokyo to study medical illustration, and though she’s ignored by the more privileged girls in her rooming house, she finds satisfaction in the precision and purpose of her work. Sayako is the first roommate to pay Akemi attention, and they quickly become inseparable – Sayako drawn to Akemi’s humble origins, so distinct from her own insufferable, wealthy family; Akemi attracted to Sayako’s rebelliousness and her aspiration to be a painter.

As Akemi begins to model for Sayako, their connection deepens. Together, they begin to attend ‘happenings,’ encounters arranged by two enigmatic artists, Nezu and Kaori, in random locations, intended to free them from their worldly attachments. Following a devastating betrayal, Sayako disappears, and Akemi becomes determined to find her – and in the process, must newly face herself.

Tender, enthralling, and evocative of the energy of Japan in the 1970s, The Art of Vanishing is the story of a young woman struggling to see and be seen; of authenticity and art; of the thin line between loyalty and obsession. It explores the depths of female friendship, and the transformative power of love.

LYNNE KUTSUKAKE’s debut novel The Translation of Love won the 2017 Kobo Emerging Writer Prize and the 2016 Canada-Japan Literary Award. A third generation Japanese Canadian, Kutsukake has studied modern literature in Canada and in Japan.

Christine Ma-Kellams THE BAND

Sang Duri is the eldest member and “visual” of a Korean boy band at the apex of global superstardom. But when his latest solo single accidentally leads to controversy, he’s abruptly canceled.

To spare the band from fallout with obsessive fans and overbearing management, Duri disappears from the public eye by hiding out in the McMansion of a Chinese American woman he meets in a Los Angeles H-Mart. But his rescuer is both unhappily married with children and a psychologist with a savior complex, a combination that makes their potential union both seductive and incredibly problematic.

Meanwhile, Duri’s cancellation catapults not only a series of repressed memories from his music producer’s earlier years about the original girl group whose tragic disbanding preceded his current success, but also a spiral of violent interactions that culminates in an award show event with reverberations that forever change the fates of both the band members and the music industry.

In its indicting portrayal of mental health and public obsession, fandom, and cancel culture, The Band considers the many ways in which love and celebrity can devolve into something far more sinister when their demands are unmet.

CHRISTINE MA-KELLAMS is a Harvard-trained cultural psychologist, Pushcart-nominated fiction writer, and first-generation American. As an associate professor of psychology at San Jose State University, her empirical work on the emotional lives and biases of Asians and white people has not only been published in premier academic journals but in mainstream media.

Rowman & Littlefield published her textbook, Cultural Psychology. Her short stories, essays, and interviews have been featured in over three dozen literary magazines and news outlets.

Susin Nielsen SNAP

Frances Partridge, 55, is a beloved children's author. Geraint Blevins, 41, is an auto mechanic and devoted family man. Parker Poplawski, 23, is just starting her career as a wardrobe assistant on a hit TV show. What do these three people have in common?

Nothing, that's what. Until each of them reaches a breaking point, and snaps in spectacular ways. They meet in a court-mandated anger management class: three very different people forced to spend a lot of time together, who slowly end up bonding and helping one another in unexpected ways – whether it's to move on, or to exact revenge.

Lighthearted, timely and laugh-out-loud funny, Snap is Nielsen at the top of her story-telling game, featuring flawed but relatable characters whose heartaches, foibles and experiences are recognizable and universal. The novel explores marriage, parenthood, friendship, power, sexual assault and justice, and combines the quirky ensemble cast and vigilante justice of Richard Osman's Thursday Murder Club series with the comic poignancy of Clare Pooley and the sharp societal observations of Jenny Jackson.

SUSIN NIELSEN is the multiple-award winning author of seven middle grade/young adult novels. Her books have won the Governor General's Literary Award, the Ruth and Sylvia Schwartz Award, the UKLA award and over a dozen young readers' choice awards. Born Kathleen to an immigrant Irish farming family in rural Ontario, Kit McNair has been a troublesome changeling since, at ten, they fell through the river ice and drowned, only to be nursed back to life by their mother’s Celtic magic. A daredevil in boy’s clothes, Kit chafes at every aspect of a farmgirl’s life, driving that same mother to distraction with worry about where Kit will ever fit in. When Rebekah Kromer, an elegant German doctor’s daughter, moves to town with her parents in April 1939, Rebekah has no doubt as to who nineteen-year-old Kit is. Soon she and Kit, and Kit’s older brother, Landon, are drawn tight in a love triangle that will tear them and their families apart, and send each of them off on a separate path to war.

Landon signs up for the Navy. Kit, now known as Christopher, joins the Royal Air Force, becoming a bomber navigator relied on for his luck and courage. Rebekah serves with naval intelligence in Halifax, Nova Scotia, until one more collision with Landon changes the course of her life and draws her back to the McNair farm – a place where she’d once known love. Fallen on even harder times, the McNairs welcome all the help she is able to give, and she believes she has found peace at last. Until, with the war over, Kit and Landon return home.

Shane Peacock AS WE FORGIVE OTHERS

On a cold December morning, a mysterious woman appears at the house Detective Hugh Mercer is renting and predicts a murder. The next day, the crime occurs: Elizabeth Goode vanishes from a local café, or so says her husband, a man with no past named Art Wilson. But everyone else in the café that day, from the locals to the tourists, say she was never there with him, that Wilson made it all up. One thing is certain, she is gone... murdered, on the run, or held somewhere.

Mercer is an exile, who fled his job with the NYPD – and his marriage – weeks after assaulting a suspect. In a town he chose for its blandness, he discovers that there are layers of darkness and secrets, including the fact that his new lover Alice Morrow is a local police officer. In this place full of opaque witnesses, Morrow and Mercer track the perpetrator back to the US to find the stunning solution, which all circles back to the complex question of forgiveness...

As We Forgive Others shows that the secretive, northern personalities of Stieg Larsson's world exist on the western side of the Atlantic, and that the deeply ingrained assumptions we hold about our neighbours – and ourselves – make us vulnerable to acts of deception, and desperation.

Robert Rotenberg WHAT WE BURIED

It's been years since Daniel Kennicott's brother, Michael, was shot and killed the night before he was about to depart for Gubbio, Italy. The case, never solved, has haunted Daniel ever since. Long suspecting the killing was tied to Michael's planned trip but overwhelmed with grief, Daniel has put off going there – until now, the tenth anniversary of the murder.

As he's about to leave, Daniel learns that his two mentors, detectives Ari Greene and Nora Bering, have been more involved in the investigation of Michael's murder than he ever knew. And they're concerned about Daniel's safety. But why? Is Daniel risking his life – and those of others – by trying to uncover the truth?

When Daniel arrives in the bucolic Italian hill town, he learns the past has not been put to rest. Residents are still haunted by the brutal Nazi occupation, the brave acts of the local freedom fighters, and the swift savagery of German retribution.

And as Daniel delves into his family's deadly connection to Gubbio, Ari Greene searches for a killer closer to home.

Sam Wiebe OCEAN DRIVE

His first day out of prison, paroled killer Cameron Shaw meets with a mysterious lawyer who offers him a small fortune to infiltrate the League of Nations crime syndicate. Shaw turns her down, intending to go straight. But with no job, no family and no prospects, he's soon compelled to take her offer.

In the small Pacific Northwest town of White Rock, a body is pulled from a burning house. Staff Sgt. Meghan Quick identifies the victim as grad student Alexa Reed. Alexa's behaviour during her last few days strikes Quick as bizarre. Why did she remove the for-sale sign from her parents' house, and why was she trying to meet with the League of Nations?

As Quick tries to solve Alexa's homicide, Shaw moves deeper into the League's cross-border drug trade.

With the threat of a gang war looming, and long-buried secrets coming to light, Quick must find Alexa's killer, while rescuing Shaw from the brutal gang violence that threatens the future of White Rock.

Donovan Bailey UNDISPUTED

A Champion's Life

From the lush fields of his boyhood in Jamaica, to the basketball courts of Oakville, Ontario, where he came of age in one of Canada's most thriving cultural mosaics, to his sprint toward double Olympic gold for Canada in Atlanta, in 1996, Donovan Bailey got a long way on natural talent. But he also learned that in the bureaucratic world of Canadian sports, an athlete who didn't come up in the system needed to take charge of his fate if he was going to become the world's best. He'd learned from watching Muhammad Ali that a champion needed to act like a champion. But media grew fixated on the sprinter's immodesty, the likes of which they never saw from Canadian athletes, especially track athletes in the wake of the Ben Johnson doping scandal at Seoul, South Korea, in 1988. Bailey was having none of it, and when he called out Canada's subtle racism and contradicted the prevailing idea most Canadians had of their country, he left in his wake a media uproar and cracked wide open the nation's moral complacency.

In addition to his unforgettable 100-metre and 4×100 relay gold-medal sprints in Atlanta, Bailey's track career was a litany of records and rare accomplishments, including his audacious 1997 race in Toronto's SkyDome against American 200-metre Olympic champion Michael Johnson to determine who was really the world's fastest man. There was no disputing the result.

Bailey had been coached in success before he was seriously coached in athletics. Following the lead of his father, a machinist-turned-real estate investor, Bailey became a millionaire by the age of 21, an experience he continues to draw on as an entrepreneur and philanthropist. Frank about his dominance on the track and unapologetic for expecting as much of those around him as he expects of himself, Undisputed is an athlete's story that refuses to settle for second best.

DONOVAN BAILEY is one of the world's most dominant sprinting legends. He is the first man in history to be world champion, Olympic champion, and world record holder at the same time. He's also the only person to be inducted into Canada's Sports Hall of Fame twice. Since retirement in 2001, he has worked as a commentator for CBC, CTV, and Eurosport. He is involved with and supports many charities

Denise Chong OUT OF DARKNESS

Rumana Monzur's Journey through Betrayal, Tyranny and Abuse

From the outside, Rumana Monzur seemed an unlikely victim of domestic abuse: well educated, married to a man of her own choosing, and progressing in her career as a professor of international relations at Dhaka University. But in 2011, on return from graduate studies at the University of British Columbia, her husband attacked and blinded her in front of their young daughter. As Monzur's horrifying story garnered international headlines, and connections brought her to Vancouver in an attempt – ultimately futile – to restore her sight, her plight underscored the fact that there are no typical victims of intimate-partner violence.

Denise Chong goes behind the headlines to reveal the devolution of a love story into a tale of tyranny behind closed doors, and the pursuit of justice that proved all the more elusive during the rise of social media. Out of Darkness tells a globe-spanning narrative of loyalty, perseverance and a woman's determination to face the future and rebuild a life with meaning.

DENISE CHONG is an award-winning author whose work portrays the lives of ordinary people caught in the eye of history. She is best known for The Concubine's Children, a family memoir; The Girl in the Picture about the "napalm girl" of the Vietnam War; and Egg on Mao, a story of love and defiance in China of 1989. Formerly an adjunct professor at Carlton University's Feminist Institute of Social Transformation, she lives in Ottawa, Canada.

RUMANA MONZUR was born in Dhaka, Bangladesh; lost her sight in 2011; and graduated from law school in 2017. She practices law and champions the rights of women and of persons with disabilities in Vancouver.

Kate Gies IT MUST BE BEAUTIFUL TO BE FINISHED

Sometimes fixing the problem is the problem.

When Kate Gies was four years old, a plastic surgeon pressed a synthetic ear to the right side of her head and pulled out a mirror. He told her he could make her “whole” – could make her “right” – and she believed him. From the age of four to thirteen, she underwent fifteen surgeries, including skin and bone grafts, to craft the appearance of an outer ear. Many of the surgeries failed, leaving permanent damage to her body.

Written in short, lyrical vignettes, It Must Be Beautiful to Be Finished is the story of a “disfigured” body scrutinized, pathologized, and even weaponized. It details the physical and psychic trauma of medical intervention, and its effects on Gies’ burgeoning sense of self as a child needing to be fixed – and later, as a teenaged girl and adult navigating the complex expectations and dangers of being a woman. Put simply, this book will punch readers in the gut. Gies does not hold back; she is unflinching in her telling, and the result is a memoir that is beautiful, sad, shocking, and at times truly horrifying.

The book questions our culture’s desire to define a person’s appearance as a medical necessity and highlights the lengths our society will go to discipline and “normalize” a body. It is the story of a girl desperately trying to have a body that makes her acceptable, and of a woman learning to own a body she never felt was hers to define. In an age of speaking out about the abuse of marginalized bodies, this memoir takes a hard look at the medical system’s role in body oppression and trauma.

KATE GIES is a writing professor at George Brown College in Toronto. She was a participant in the Iowa Writers’ Summer Workshop and was a finalist for the CBC Non-fiction Prize. Her essay “Foreign Bodies” (excerpted from It Must Be Beautiful to Be Finished) is being included in the forthcoming Best Canadian Essays anthology by Biblioasis.

Robert Hunt WHY ME?

A Lifetime of Alien Encounters

The release of the Pentagon’s ‘Unidentified Aerial Phenomena’ report in 2021 attracted global attention, as did the US Department of Defense’s creation of an office to track unidentified objects.

Our fascination, fear and skepticism about extraterrestrial life is well-entrenched. Robert Hunt knows that extraterrestrials pluck us from our beds and cars, to study, teach, and prepare us for the inevitable. He knows because he’s been abducted by aliens since the night of his seventh birthday.

The narrative unfolds chronologically, from his first visitation to abduction by the greys to being told he will ascend “one Sunday in August.” The encounters vary as do the beings; sometimes benevolent, sometimes causing harm, and some captured in photos taken on Hunt’s motion-triggered camera and included in the book. He flies through the air and enters his girlfriend’s second-story bedroom. He is lifted to an alien craft, and subjected to excruciating experiments. On occasion, he is informed and reassured and protected, and prepared for what will come next.

Why Me? is a propulsive first-hand tale to sit between Pulitzer Prize winner John Mack’s Abduction, in print since 1994, and astrophysicist Adam Frank’s The Little Book of Aliens.

Dean Jobb A GENTLEMAN AND A THIEF

The Daring Jewel Heists of a Jazz Age Rogue

Smart, smooth and a skilled con artist, Arthur Barry was one of the most successful burglars in history – “the greatest jewel thief who ever lived,” according to Life magazine. He was adept at slipping in and out of bedrooms undetected, even when his victims slept only inches away. He became a folk hero, a gentleman bandit touted in the press as the “Prince of Thieves” and an “Aristocrat of Crime.”

In the span of seven years, Barry stole pearls, diamonds and other precious gems that would be worth almost $60 million today. Among his many victims were a Rockefeller, an heiress to the Woolworth's department store fortune, an oil magnate, Wall Street bigwigs, a top executive at General Motors and members of the Royal Family who were touring America. He befriended the Prince of Wales, Harry Houdini and other luminaries.

A Gentleman and a Thief is also a love story. To protect his wife, Anna Blake, Barry confessed to dozens of burglaries. Sentenced to a 25-year term, he staged a dramatic prison break – triggering a bloody inmates' riot – when Anna became seriously ill, so they could be together for a few more years as fugitives.

The rollicking, caper-filled rise and dramatic downfall of this master thief is a high-speed ride told in stylish prose by author Dean Jobb. Page-turning escapism sparkling with insight into the allure of gemstones and our fascination with well-planned heists and the suave, clever criminals who pull them off, A Gentleman and a Thief is perfect reading for true-crime fans who relish the exploits of con artists and high-class crooks.

DEAN JOBB is the author of The Case of the Murderous Dr. Cream, winner of the CrimeCon CLUE Award for true-crime book of the year and longlisted for the Andrew Carnegie Medal for Excellence in Non-fiction. His book Empire of Deception was called “intoxicating and impressively researched” by The New York Times Book Review and named the Chicago Writers Association's Non-fiction Book of the Year. Jobb has written for the Chicago Tribune, The Globe & Mail and the Irish Times, and was hailed by Esquire magazine as “a master of narrative non-fiction.” Jobb is a professor in the Master of Fine Arts in Creative Non-fiction program at the University of King's College in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Paige Layle BUT EVERYONE FEELS THIS WAY

How an Autism Diagnosis Saved My Life

Paige Layle was normal. She lived in the countryside with her mom, dad, and brother Graham. She went to school, hung out with friends, and all the while everything seemed so much harder than it needed to be. A break in routine threw off the whole day. If her teacher couldn’t answer “why” in class, she dissolved into tears, unable to articulate her own confusion or explain her lack of control.

But Layle was normal. She smiled in photos, picked her feet up when her mom needed to vacuum instead of fleeing the room, and earned high grades. She had friends and loved to perform in local theater productions. It wasn’t until a psychiatrist said she wasn’t doing okay, that anyone believed her.

In But Everyone Feels This Way, Layle shares her story as an autistic woman diagnosed late. Armed with the phrase “Autism Spectrum Disorder” (ASD), Layle challenges stigmas, taboos, and stereotypes while learning how to live her authentic, autistic life.

PAIGE LAYLE is a beloved autistic influencer and advocate, dedicated to having the real, tough conversations. With a heart full of passion and a voice that resonates with authenticity, Paige advocates for inclusion and acceptance. She is bold, informative, and entertaining.

Kyo Maclear UNEARTHING

A Story of Tangled Love and Family Secrets

For readers of Crying in H Mart and Wintering, an unforgettable memoir about a family secret revealed by a DNA test, the lessons learned in its aftermath, and the indelible power of love.

Three months after Kyo Maclear's father dies, a DNA test reveals that they were not biologically related. All at once Kyo's mother becomes unknown to her; she has a big story to tell, the story of a secret buried for half a century, but her memories are fading. Words are failing them both, so Kyo looks to gardening – her mother's second fluent tongue – to bridge the gap between them.

Unclearing is written in the wild green language of soil, seed, leaf, and mulch. ## Christina Myers HALFWAY HOME

Thoughts from Midlife

Award-winning author Christina Myers navigates the uncharted territory of midlife in a time of rapid social, cultural, and environmental change.

Modern midlife is finding oneself halfway home but without any reliable maps for the route ahead. With wit and warmth, these personal essays move from a first bra to first hot flashes to consider the lessons we learn through media and culture – and from each other – about bodies, sexuality, fatphobia, gender roles, and what we should want in life. Myers explores the ways that beauty standards and cultural expectations around femininity have shaped our identities and how we might shed those going forward; the power of friendships and the value of having other women to learn from; the anxiety of moving through motherhood into menopause in a time of global environmental crisis and political upheaval; and the uncertainty of how this stage of life should unfold, as old systems shift and crumble. Though our maps for midlife are never identical, we discover familiar paths and common landmarks in each other’s stories; these essays remind us there are others on this trail with us, just behind or just ahead, out of sight. We are not alone.

CHRISTINA MYERS is an author, editor, and writing instructor. In a past life, she was a journalist, too. She likes working in her garden and walking in the woods and cooking for people. And writing and reading (and talking about writing and reading, too). ### Alpha Nkuranga BORN TO WALK

My Journey of Trials and Resilience

Alpha Nkuranga died a hundred times during the Rwandan civil war. Or at least, she should have. Hiding in the swamp near her village, she clutched her little brother, praying that he would not die in her arms while rebels burned her family alive within earshot. After ten days, the two escaped by walking to Tanzania, where they endured the daily horrors of life in the refugee camps and an uncertain future.

Growing up in Rwanda, Nkuranga quickly learned that the world has no space for girls with ambition. She knew she had to escape the horrific fate of forced marriage and abuse that many Rwandan women, including her mother, had to face, and she knew that her best chance to escape would come through education. It was an unlikely dream, full of overwhelming obstacles, but she'd risk everything to find her voice.

Born to Walk is a true accounting of Nkuranga's survival of the Rwandan civil war and the aftermath as one of the millions who were displaced. Her story is one of hope, endurance, and faith that she would one day escape the confines of her culture and emerge triumphant.

ALPHA NKURANGA fled her village as an eight-year-old during the Rwandan civil war of 1994 and subsequently lived in refugee camps in Tanzania and Uganda. She came to Canada as a refugee in 2010 and currently lives in Kitchener, Ontario, where she works for Women's Crisis Services of Waterloo Region.

Sima Samar with Sally Armstrong OUTSPOKEN

My Fight for Freedom and Human Rights in Afghanistan

"I have three strikes against me. I'm a woman, I speak out for women, and I'm Hazara, the most persecuted ethnic group in Afghanistan."

Dr. Sima Samar has been fighting for equality and justice for most of her life. Born into a polygamous family, she learned early that girls had inferior status, and she had to agree to an arranged marriage if she wanted to go to university. By the time she was in medical school, she had a son, Ali, and had become a revolutionary. After her husband was disappeared by the pro-Russian regime, she escaped. With her son and medical degree, she took off into the rural areas – by horseback, by donkey, even on foot – to treat people who had never had medical help before.

Samar's wide-ranging experiences both in her home country and on the world stage have given her inside access to the dishonesty, the collusion, the corruption, the self-serving leaders, and the hijacking of religion. And as a former Vice President, she knows all the players in this chess game called Afghanistan. With stories that are at times poignant, at times terrifying, inspiring as well as disheartening, Simar provides an unparalleled view of Afghanistan's past and its present. Despite being in grave personal danger for many years, she has worked tirelessly for the dream she is convinced is an achievable one: justice and full human rights for all the citizens of her country.

SIMA SAMAR is a doctor for the poor, an educator of the marginalized and a human rights defender. She is currently a visiting scholar at Tufts University's Fletcher School.

Leanne Betasamosake Simpson THEORY OF WATER

Essays

After three years of pandemic and in the face of amplified fascism, freedom convoys, extinct glaciers, police killings, children alone in cages at borders, the resurgence of fascist states, open air prisons for entire peoples, and a dying planet, Leanne Betasamosake Simpson is asking herself, what does it mean, as Rebecca Belmore asks us in her installation Wave Sound, to listen to water? What does it mean, as Dionne Brand writes through her diaspora consciousness and by inventorying the quotidian disasters of our time, in her epic poem Nomenclature, “to believe in water?”

Drawing on Nishnaabe origin stories, poetry, and thinking alongside writers and artists such as Christina Sharpe, Olúfémi O. Táíwò, William C. Anderson, Alexis Pauline Gumbs, Natalie Diaz, Katherine McKittrick, and Françoise Vergès, Betasamosake Simpson turns to water as a generative space for worldmaking against empire, within the network of life that makes up this planet. Theory of Water immerses the reader into water as a liminal space resistant to regiment, and considers future formations for life beyond our current collective imaginings.

LEANNE BETASAMOSAKE SIMPSON is a renowned Michi Saagiig Nishnaabeg scholar, author of eight books, and artist, who has been widely recognized as one of the most compelling Indigenous voices of her generation. Her novel Noopiming: The Cure for White Ladies was shortlisted for the Governor General's Literary Award for fiction and the Dublin Literary Award, and This Accident of Being Lost was a finalist for the Rogers Writers' Trust Fiction Prize and the Trillium Book Award. Her collaboration with Robyn Maynard, Rehearsals for Living, was praised by Naomi Klein as “a beacon of a book.” Working for two decades as an independent scholar using Nishnaabeg intellectual practices, Betasamosake Simpson has lectured and taught extensively at universities across Canada and the US, and has twenty years' experience with Indigenous land-based education. She holds a PhD from the University of Manitoba, and teaches at the Dechinta Centre for Research & Learning in Denendeh.

VALLEY OF THE BIRDTAIL

An Indian Reserve, a White Town, and the Road to Reconciliation

Divided by a beautiful valley and 150 years of racism, the town of Rossburn, Manitoba, and the Waywayseecappo Indian reserve have been neighbors nearly as long as Canada has been a country. Their story reflects much of what has gone wrong in relations between Indigenous Peoples and non-Indigenous Canadians. It also offers, in the end, an uncommon measure of hope.

Valley of the Birdtail is about how two communities became separate and unequal – and what it means for the rest of us. In Rossburn, once settled by Ukrainian immigrants who fled poverty and persecution, family income is near the national average and more than a third of adults have graduated from university. In Waywayseecappo, the average family lives below the national poverty line and less than a third of adults have graduated from high school, with many haunted by their time in residential schools.

This book follows multiple generations of two families, one white and one Indigenous, and weaves their lives into the larger story of Canada. It is a story of villains and heroes, irony and idealism, racism and reconciliation. Valley of the Birdtail has the ambition to change the way we think about our past and show a path to a better future.

Jenny Heijun Wills EVERYTHING AND NOTHING AT ALL

Essays

From Hilary Weston Writers’ Trust Prize-winning author Jenny Heijun Wills, reflections on ambiguity, stereotypes about queer Asian diasporic women, and how she might exist in the in-between when the world so desperately wants her to fit its image of what she should be.

As an adoptee, Wills navigates the in-betweenness of race and ethnicity. As an Asian pan-polyam femme, she occupies a liminal space between family and “freedom,” queerness and heteronormativity, monogamy and a constellation of love. As a person who self-harms to cope with mental illness, she balances wanting to be beautiful and making herself ugly, preening in the limelight while daily wishing her body would disappear. As a parent with a lifelong eating disorder, her love language is to feed, but she herself refuses to consume love; she is both culturally consumed and consumes culture to learn how to be what society expects of her. In these devastating, illuminating, and beautifully crafted essays, Wills probes personal grey zones, ambiguities, and excesses to consider how to claim her space in the in-between when the world so desperately wants her to be one thing or another.

JENNY HEIJUN WILLS is a creative writer and scholar (critical race and American studies) who was born in Seoul, South Korea, and was adopted and raised in a white family in Canada. She’s lived, studied, and worked in Toronto, Montreal, Boston, and Seoul, and holds a PhD in English Literary Studies. She currently teaches at the University of Winnipeg in Manitoba where she is the first creative writer serving as Chancellor’s Research Chair. The author of over 50 essays and co-editor of two essay collections, she won the 2019 Hilary Weston Writers’ Trust Prize for Nonfiction for her debut book Older Sister. Not Necessarily Related, a heartbreaking memoir about kinship and culture rediscovered. Wills is a Fulbright Alum (Harvard) and a graduate of the School of Criticism and Theory (Cornell), and in 2016 was Visiting Scholar at the Center for the Comparative Study of Race and Ethnicity (Stanford).
